Grafting sustainability into every layer of the ecosystem

Permaculture has a set of design principles derived using whole-systems thinking. It applies these principles in fields such as regenerative agriculture, town planning, rewilding, and community resilience. This approach fosters biodiversity and resilience, leading to self-sufficient ecosystems that provide for our needs while minimizing waste.

Improving the environment

Mandala gardens, inspired by spiritual symbolism, use geometric patterns to create beautiful and productive spaces that optimize water use and support a variety of vegetables.

Herb spirals are ingenious raised garden beds offering a range of microclimates within a compact area, allowing sun-loving and shade-tolerant herbs to thrive together.

Trellises provide vertical support for vegetable climbers, maximizing space and sunlight while adding a beautiful vertical element to the garden design.

The banana circle is a time-tested method for creating fertile areas with a central compost pile, enriching both banana plants and surrounding soil.

The average PM2.5 concentration in 2022 was around 50 ($\mu\text{g}/\text{m}^3$), exposing over 96% of India's population to unsafe air. In stark contrast to the pollution plaguing many Indian cities, is Pranavayu Vanam; Where you can breathe deeply- feel the fresh, crisp air fill your lungs with each inhale. Wake up to the gentle whispers of the breeze carrying the sweet fragrance of nature.

Water

That quenches curiosity

Around 70% of surface water is unfit for consumption, and a staggering 40 million liters of water go to waste daily. At Pranavayu Vanam, experience the purity of the water firsthand. Enjoy the calming sounds of natural streams.

Earth

That supports growth

One-third of global soil is degraded due to erosion. This essential foundation of life struggles to exist beneath the concrete jungles of modern cities. Reconnect with the earth at Pranavayu Vanam- feel the rich, fertile soil beneath your feet- a grounding and invigorating experience.

Fire

That ignites passion

Every month in 2023 ranked among the warmest on the Global Climate Report. At Pranavayu Vanam, experience a welcoming respite and a refreshing comfort. Sustainable practices and the natural environment create a cooler microclimate than the city.
